IRISH PROTESTANTS WILL FIGHT IF NECESSARY TO BLOCK HOME RULE AND DUBLIN PARLIAMENT

Thousands of Men Sign Solemn Covenant to Use Every Necessary Means to Prevent Operation of Local Self Government Plan Proposed by Dominant Coalition in British House of Commons.

FEAR OF ROMAN CATHOLIC DOMINATION RESPONSIBLE FOR THREATENED REVOLT

Earl and Commoner, Preacher and Peasant Join in What Is Intended to Be Bitter Rebuke to Liberal Government and What Is Termed Conspiracy Against Rights of Non-Catholic Population of Emerald Isle.

[By Leased Wire to Evening Herald] Belfast, Ireland, Sept. 28.—Sir Edward Carson today wrote his name to the first to sign the solemn covenant of the Ulstermen, which binds them to "use all the means that may be found necessary to defeat the present conspiracy to set up home rule in Ireland," and also to refuse to recognize the authority of an Irish parliament. He was followed by thousands of the sons and sons-in-law of the Ulstermen and peasants in the northern province of Ireland.

Under the day the Orangeites' culminating day of protest against home rule opened with an absolute calmness that rendered unionists and home rulers alike apprehensive as to what might happen. The simple fact is that even those responsible for today's signature of the formidable "league and covenant" had looked toward to the day's happenings with misgivings.

The weather was doubtful early in the day, but before the Ulstermen had begun to gather for the religious services which preceded the signing of the covenant, sunshine flooded the streets. The town was gaily decorated, the Union Jack being everywhere predominant, one huge national flag enveloping the facade of Ulster hall, the center of today's proceedings.

Most of the shops and all the big industrial works were closed, so that every man desirous to do so might be able to participate in the manifesto.

The spirit of unity prevailing among the Protestant denominations was illustrated by the selection of the officiating clergymen. Rev. W. T. Lean, formerly Presbyterian moderator, preached the sermon and he was assisted in the service by ministers belonging to the Anglican, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches. Sir Edward Carson sat at the right of Mr. McLean and the left of Mr. Belfast at his left.

A semi-military aspect was not lacking in the meeting as 200 picked Stewards members of the Unionists clubs and orange lodges, wearing bright sashes acted as a guard of honor standing around the pulpit while 100 of what is known as the Ulster guard stood in ranks in the galleries.

The great congregation was unable to restrain itself as noteworthy personages came into the hall. Among the first was Lord Charles Beresford, who was greeted with a loud cheer. Capt. James Craig, the unionist member for East Down, reminded the audience the service was a religious one and said, "Sir Edward Carson which is to be looked upon as such in the real sense of the word."

When Sir Edward Carson and Frederick E. Smith arrived, however, the people, forgetting of the appeal that has been made again broke into cheers, which continued as the two leaders proceeded to the platform to be joined the Orange flag of the battle of Ballynahinch presented to Sir Edward Carson in such a dramatic manner last evening.

The service opened with the hymn, "O, God, Our Help in Ages Past," after which a short prayer was offered and an appeal made to the Almighty to "Stretch forth Thy arms and help us in this time of national danger." The first lesson was taken from Deut., XXVI, 1-9. "We have a strong city."

The Rev. W. McLean's sermon raised the congregation to another burst of cheering, which was suppressed from the pulpit. Dr. McLean declared the Irish question at bottom was a war against protestant man Catholic ascendancy in Ireland and not against ascendancy in Ireland and to stop the disintegration of the British empire by securing a second parliament in Dublin. Ulstermen were ready, he said, to accept almost any program of social and political reform, but they would not have home rule.

The service concluded with the singing of the national anthem. The service was roundly cheered when Sir Edward Carson proceeded to sign the covenant was a remarkable one. The approach to the hall was lined by a guard of men wearing sabers and armbands and carrying wooden staves. Other men were posted about the grounds of the hall much as they expected an attack from the nationists who, however, thus far stayed by as much pleased with the semi-military display as the Ulster men themselves.

In the center of the marble-paved vestibule of the hall stood a table covered with crimson and draped with the union jack while in the corridors were long lines of wooden desks where copies of the covenant had been placed for signature.

Unbroken enthusiasm was shown when, after Sir Edward Carson, came Lord Londonderry, the moderator of the Presbyterian church, the bishops of the diocese and ministers of various denominations intermingled with unionist members of parliament.

Many women signed a declaration associating themselves with the men of Ulster in uncompromising opposition to the home rule bill.

After the leaders had signed the hall was temporarily closed to be opened later on for the rank and file. Some of them marched to the hall in a body while others came singly. A

LAWRENCE TEXTILE STRIKERS REST CONTENT WITH SHOWING

Believed Men Will Return to Work Monday After Demonstration of Protest Against Imprisonment of Fellows.

NO DISORDER AMONG EIGHT THOUSAND IDLE

[By Leased Wire to Evening Herald] Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 28.—The question of continuing or settling the strike in the Lawrence textile mills, called Thursday as a protest against the imprisonment of Elmer and Giovannitti, the industrial workers of the World organizers, was expected to be settled at a mass meeting on Lawrence common this afternoon.

The strike continued today, despite the vote of operatives at meetings last night to return to their machines. It was estimated that 8,000 hands were idle. There was no trouble of any kind when the mill gates opened and the strikers did not pay any pickets.

Leaders of the organization claimed that the strike demonstration has been sufficient protest against the imprisonment of Elmer and Giovannitti.

Two Men Killed and Three Wounded When They Attempt to Cross Dead Line Established by Soldiers.

STRIKERS THREATEN TO DYNAMITE POWER PLANT

[By Leased Wire to Evening Herald] Augusta, Ga., Sept. 28.—Martial law ruled in Augusta today as a result of last night's disorders in which two men were killed and one wounded by state militiamen guarding property of the local street railway company whose employees are on strike. Five companies of guardsmen were on duty.

The fifth company arrived early yesterday and was placed on duty around the railway power plant.

It was in this territory that a "dead line" was established by militiamen last night and in which the shooting of three persons occurred.

The dispersal of these additional guardsmen was ordered by Governor Brown late last night after he was informed that the situation here was critical. He issued a proclamation declaring the city to be in a state of insurrection and ordering martial law.

After the disturbances in the south, the country has been shifting rapidly. My conversations with business men indicate that the Roosevelt enthusiasm is fading very rapidly and that President Taft is gaining strength faster than ever.

"While I am no longer actively interested in politics, I have naturally taken great interest in investigating the conditions regarding the presidential election in the states in which I have been during the past ten days," said Frank A. Hubbell, who is about to leave for a tour to Chicago, New Haven, Indianapolis and Cincinnati, and it is clear that President Taft is gaining strength with every day and that the business interests of the country are with him almost to a man, regardless of politics.

Mr. Hubbell, who went east to accompany his son to college, stopped in Boston yesterday en route to Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Madison, McCormick, Milwaukee, Sioux City, Omaha, and Denver, and will return to New York on October 8. DELEGATES UNPREDICTED FAVERED NEW YORK

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Horace S. Foy, president of the Philadelphia National team, leading baseball team, in a signed statement issued here today, charged that New York National league clubs was able to win the pennant this season because it had been unduly favored by umpires.

"There has never been a time in the history of the country when general business conditions were so satisfactory. The great business prosperity recently disturbed by the agitation of a presidential campaign are going right ahead with rapidly increasing business. Carrying throughout the country are good, there are few idle men and there is a feeling of aggressive optimism which is inspiring."

"Adding to the gloominess of the business side I have found that the number of men employed in the country is still declining and the number of men holding element of our people are in lesser or lessening still enough alone. They look upon the proposed tariff increase advocated by the Democratic party as dangerous in the extreme and they believe that Mr. Taft has stood solidly for the best interests of the country with little regard to what his own personal political affiliation might be. It is safe to assume that Mr. Taft's election certainly the country is turning to him even more strongly than it did to Mr. McKinley in his memorable campaign, who has sentiment of security under present conditions and of confidence in the president's going to get strong as every day from now until election looking at the situation from an objective point of view, I can do nothing to that end."

"The immediate cause of the strike was the objection to certain rules of the company. Stockholders and company seeks to secure the union.

NEW MEXICO INDIANS INVADE COLORADO GAME REGIONS

Complaint That Redskins Hunt Without License and Kill Everything in Sight Regardless of Law.

[Special Dispatch to Evening Herald]

Durango, Colo., Sept. 28.—Indians from northern parts of Mexico have invaded western Colorado on their annual wild game hunt according to reports received by State Game Commissioner James S. Smith. The Indians not only hunt without a license, but commit many acts of wanton destruction, killing game animals, cutting up mountain sheep, which are specifically protected by the Colorado game laws. These depredations were to be repeated in order to secure the game laws.

A large percentage of the total amount of firearms ammunition and dynamite sold to Indians by the state and federal government is used in hunting.

It is said the evidence proves conclusively that no American money was used in financing the Indian rebellion and that efforts are being made to establish the claim that American funds were used to finance the Mexican revolution.

"If you are against me," he said in an address here, "I've nothing to say. The man I am trying to reach is the man who is for me, but votes against me because his grandfather voted that way."

"The way for you to know your grandfather is to live fearlessly the way he did."

"I want to see Alabama take its part in national affairs as brilliantly as it has done in the past. This can not be done as long as you do not face the live issues of the day."

"Time and again I have complained in the interests of the south against your own senators and congressmen for their failure to support the south that kept their eyes on me and voted the way they thought their grandfathers would have voted."

Amarillo, Tex., Sept. 28.—Judge J. N. Brown today denied habeas corpus for James H. Sneed, charged with killing Al G. Boyce Jr., in this city September 14th; and Sneed remained to jail to await trial.

"He was especially impressed," he said, "by the fact that everywhere great crowds with whom I came in contact and the people whom I met personally seemed to take for granted that I would be elected."

"The way for you to know your grandfather is to live fearlessly the way he did."

NEW REBEL OUTBREAK IN SPAIN

Barcelona, Spain, Sept. 28.—The Spanish government, to the surprise of the world, has reported that action to decide the issue at issue will be attempted soon, but whether the plan of the rebels is for a settlement or a test of strength is a question in the minds of the union leaders. Separatist J. B. Serrano of the Madrid coup committee, says the rebels will spend a few days more in the south and will then join forces with the rebels in the north.

It is said the evidence proves conclusively that no American money was used in financing the Indian rebellion and that efforts are being made to establish the claim that American funds were used to finance the Mexican revolution.
